

DOUBLE HANGING SCHEDULED FOR FEBRUARY 26TH.

Freeman and Smith, Both Colored, Convicted of Murder, Sentenced.

Both Appeal Their Cases From Circuit Court Today.

OTHER CRIMINAL MATTERS

Two murderers, George Freeman, charged with killing Essie Cobb, and Jonas Smith, colored, for killing his father, Amos Smith, this morning were sentenced to be hanged by the neck between sunrise and sunset, on February 26. Both negroes took their sentences calmly, and it seemed for the first time that Smith realized the meaning of the verdict. When asked for legal reasons why the sentence should not be imposed, both said they "had it to do." These were not legal reasons, and Judge Reed sentenced them. Attorneys for both have taken appeals, and pending this the judgment will be suspended for 60 days, and the court gave until the twenty-fifth day of the February term for a transcript of the evidence.

The Death Watch.

Besieged by applicants for the job of death watch over Jonas Smith and George Freeman, both colored murderers, Sheriff John W. Ogilvie is in a quandary. The sheriff is not over anxious for the job of pulling the lever that will end the lives of the two negroes should the appeal to the court of appeals not change the verdict, and was surprised that so many applications should be received this early. Even farmers want to act on the death watch, and many have called on the sheriff.

Charlie Lee Hill, colored, another murderer, was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary. Hill had a broad grin on his face when Judge Reed said: "According to rumors in the air Charlie you escaped rather light."

Sixteen prisoners will be taken to Eddyville, and one woman will be taken to the penitentiary at Frankfort by Sheriff John Ogilvie. The other prisoners sentenced were: John Woodworth, obtaining property by false pretenses, one year; Dick Oakley, colored, setting up a game, one year in the penitentiary and a fine of $100. Through an error of the court in stating the amount of the fine Oakley was saved $400, as Judge Reed said $100 when he intended to say $500. Henry Ruff, colored, store breaking, five years; Harrison Chambers, colored, one year; John Muse, colored, three years; Charles Williams, colored, store breaking, three years; Charles Lee Hill, colored, murder, five years; Jim Brown, colored, malicious cutting, three years; Harry Bedford, colored, two years; Mary Wade, colored, false swearing, one year. Herbert Nicholson, forgery, was sentenced to two years in the house of reform.

Grand Jury Through.

The grand jury made its final report this morning, and was discharged by Judge Reed, who complimented the members on the work that had been accomplished. Eight indictments were returned this morning, while the following were dismissed: Rosa Stevenson, grand larceny, dismissed; James York, malicious shooting, dismissed; Tom Kelly, robbery, dismissed; Will Blanks, obtaining property by false pretenses, dismissed; Foster Williams, obtaining property by false pretenses, dismissed. The members of the grand jury were: Arch T. Sutherland, foreman; H. M. Dalton, clerk; M. B. Hodges, sheriff; Stephen Grim, J. A. Prince, J. Wurtz, J. M. Howard, S. M. Potter, J. A. Wurtz, Harry George and J. B. Walman.

Recommend New Jail.

A new jail is the recommendation of the grand jury in the report handed in this morning. The grand jury was taken through the prison yesterday, and in the report complimented County Jailor James Baker on his energy in keeping the jail in as sanitary condition as possible. The report says that the jail is inadequate for the county, unsanitary, unsafe and not commodious. The grand jury says that it will be impracticable to repair the present building, and recommends that the county build a new jail.

The county sanitarium was visited yesterday, and County Judge Lightfoot, and Superintendent William Thompson served dinner to the members. The report on the institution says that the grounds and buildings are in perfect condition, and that the food furnished the inmates is ample, but not extravagant, while economy is used in running the sanitarium. The grand jury said that it was a model for other counties in the state to follow.

Seventy Killed in Train Collision.

Glenwood Springs, Col., Jan. 16.—Seventy are known to be dead and thirty injured in the latest report from the wreck at Dotsero in a collision between a passenger and freight train on the Denver & Rio Grande railroad last night. A relief train arrived from the scene of the wreck at Dotsero this morning with 20 bodies. Various reports received say there are possibly many more under the wreckage. The collision occurred at a place where the track is cut into a wall with a precipice and deep canon on the other side. The wreckage caught fire and passengers extinguished the flames with snow.

County Clerk Hiram Smedley Sued and Indicted For Alleged Failure to Account For Funds of the State

Will Husbands, Revenue Agt., Enters Suit Against Him and His Bond For $3,270.45 Today.

Although every effort was made to keep the matter quiet, it leaked out today that Hiram Smedley, county clerk of McCracken county, was indicted by the grand jury for his alleged failure to account for public money. Suit was also entered in circuit court against him by Will Husbands, revenue agent for the county, to recover from him or the Title Guaranty and Trust company, of Scranton, Pa., on his bond, $3,270.45.

Mr. Smedley is at Martinsville, Ind., for his health, and there is no fear that he will not return to face the charge. His friends believe the trouble will all be cleared up, but in his absence decline to attempt any explanation of the apparent irregularity.

The Alleged Shortage.

Of the total $3,270.45, it is alleged that $224.45 was due the state for fees collected for filing deeds and records, while $2,945.95 is due for the alleged failure to report collections of back taxes. In the quarter from January, 1906, to April, 1906, 181 mortgages and powers of attorney were filed, while in his report, the suit alleges, he mentioned only 145 mortgages and power of attorney, which was a shortage of $18.

From April, 1906, to September 1906, 205 mortgages and powers of attorney were filed with fees amounting to $103, while it is alleged that only 140 mortgages were reported and fees amounting to $70, a shortage of $33.

From January, 1906, 147 marriage licenses were reported when it is alleged there were 150 issued. From September, 1906, to December, 1906, it is alleged 358 deeds, 101 powers of attorney and 139 marriage licenses were issued, and it is alleged that only 320 deeds, 95 powers of attorney and 118 marriage licenses were reported, making a shortage of $29.50.

From December, 1906, to April, 1907, it is alleged, 135 powers of attorney were issued and only 118 reported, making a shortage of $8.50. From April, 1907, to September, 1907, it is alleged that 487 deeds and 229 marriage licenses were issued and only 444 deeds and marriage licenses reported, making a shortage of $30.

From September, 1907, to December, 1907, it is alleged 338 deeds and 78 power of attorneys were filed and only 307 deeds and 72 marriage licenses reported, making a shortage of $18.50.

From December, 1907, to April, 1908, it is alleged, that 265 deeds and 122 marriage licenses were issued and only 256 deeds and 118 marriage licenses reported, a shortage of $66.50.

From April, 1908, to September, 1908, it is alleged that 356 deeds were filed and only 308 deeds filed, a shortage of $24.

Also it is alleged that a liquor license was issued to John Niehaus in December, 1908, but that the $100 was not reported.

From the suit it is seen that the shortages have been regular, and every settlement a shortage in the number of deeds or marriage licenses was reported, and the suit alleges, that Smedley used the money derived from the fees.

The balance of the alleged shortage was in tax returns.

ASSOCIATION IS INSOLVENT SAYS BILL AS AMENDED

Alleges That Profit is Made by Association in Types and Trash.

Contents No Mutuality But Private Monopoly.

WHY RECEIVER IS ASKED FOR

Additional charges of mismanagement by the officers of the tobacco association were filed this morning in an amended petition to the suit of Lee Walters and others versus the Planters' Protective association of Kentucky, Tennessee and Virginia. In the amended petition it is recited that at the time of the filing of the original petition the attorneys were not cognizant of some facts and a few errors had been made. Attorneys Oliver, Shemwell and Reeder filed the petition.

The first charge is that approximately ten pounds of tobacco were taken out of each hoghead as types, and of the 200,000 hogheads in keeping of the association, at 10 cents a pound the 2,000,000 pounds of tobacco would be worth about $200,000. The petition alleges that the types were the property of the tobacco owners. Also it is alleged that over 200 hogheads of tobacco, known as trash, had been sold by the officers, and the money not distributed to the owners of the tobacco. The hogheads of tobacco are valued at $60 each.

In the pricing of the tobacco it is alleged the association had a contract with prizers that all tobacco damaged would be paid for, but it is alleged that some of the tobacco is received wet, and it is prized with the good tobacco of another member, and the entire hoghead is allowed to rot or become useless. The petition recites that the association has refused to sue the prizers to pay for any of this damage.

Another complaint is that the association was organized as a mutual corporation and that each member owned stock, but in May, 1906, it is said, the association passed into private hands with Ewing, Fort, Fogarty and Garner in charge, while it is understood that nothing was paid over to the old mutual company. It is alleged that $550,000 was on hand and that this was never distributed, and owing to a wasting of the means, only $55,000 is on hand, and the association is insolvent.

The last complaint is that the association is not a pool, as it was contemplated, but that under the interstate laws it is operated for the purpose of monopolizing the dark tobacco in the countries of England, Austria, Italy and Africa, all of which is contrary to the laws of congress. The petition states that the dark tobacco is the only tobacco demanded in the foreign countries named.

Objections to the filing of the petition were made by attorneys for the tobacco association.

BRIEF OF DORIAN IS PREPARED FOR COURT OF APPEALS

The brief of J. J. Dorian, city treasurer, by his attorneys, Crice & Ross, in his appeal of the ouster proceedings entered in circuit court by G. W. Walters, is completed, ready for the consideration of the court of appeals. According to the brief the points to be considered are "Did the court err in overruling Dorian's general demurrer to Walters' petition, because same did not allege that appellant was eligible to the office of city treasurer, or such constitutive facts as to show that he was eligible? Is the appellant, Dorian, ineligible to succeed himself as city treasurer under the terms of Section 160 of the constitution and sections 3131 and 3132 of Kentucky statutes? Is the city clerk of Paducah, or second class cities, the proper officer to take and approve the official bonds of city treasurer?"

After stating the agreed facts concerning the election of both Mr. Dorian and Mr. Walters, and that Mr. Dorian when elected first was eligible and continues so unless rendered ineligible by the law; the brief declares that whether eligible or not, he is treasurer de-facto, recognized as such, and any one, desiring to oust him must plead and prove his own eligibility in order to do so. The demurrer was to this defect in Walters' pleading.

NEW RECTOR

APPOINTED BY BISHOP McCLOSKEY, OF LOUISVILLE.

The Rev. P. M. J. Rock has been appointed by Bishop McCloskey as rector of the Cathedral of the Assumption at Louisville. There has been no rector there since the death of Monsignor Bouciet, Easter Sunday morning several years ago. Father Rock is known to everyone in the city, having been at the cathedral almost 24 years. He was ordained to the priesthood in June, 1873, and while he was a professor at the seminary he assisted at the cathedral each Sunday. He was at Elizabethtown four years and was also at St. Cecilia's church in this city.

In May, 1885, he was sent to the cathedral as assistant priest and there he has remained ever since. The appointment could not have gone to an abler man. Father Rock is a virile and forcible speaker, and his earnestness is unquestioned, and he has a full share of the wit that is the heritage of every Irishman. He is well known in Paducah, having visited here on several occasions, one of which was the dedication of St. Francis de Sales, when he delivered the principal address.

Sunday School Rally

All of the Protestant Sunday schools in Paducah will participate in a rally at the Broadway-Methodist church tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Dr. Crossfield, president of Transylvania university, will deliver the principal address, and there will be special music by a large choir comprising the best singers in the city. Dr. Crossfield's subject will be "The Adult Bible Class." The meeting is under the auspices of the City Sunday School Union.

Mr. J. B. Rogers, of Hopkinsville, is in the city on business.

FORMER POLICE JUDGE RUCKER OF EDDYVILLE, KY., BRINGS SUIT FOR WHIPPING HE RECEIVED

Names Among the Defendants, Alleged Night Riders, Representative From Lyon-Marshall District.

MANY FAMILIAR NAMES AMONG THOSE HE ACCUSES OF TAKING PART IN RAID MADE ON EDDYVILLE, KY.

He is Now Resident of Metropolis, Ill., and Seeks to Recover Damages in Federal Court.

Eddyville, Ky., Jan. 16.—(Special.)—Representative John L. Smith, of Lyon and Marshall, Lyon County Surveyor C. W. Davis and T. P. Gray, Lyon county magistrate, are named as defendants in the suit of former Police Judge C. W. Rucker against men alleged to have whipped him at Eddyville last year.

Two suits will be filed in the United States court at Paducah today to recover damages received at the hands of night riders in Lyon county. C. W. Rucker, former city judge of Eddyville, but now a resident of Metropolis, Ill., and L. M. Woods, a former citizen of Kentucky but now of that state, will file suit through their attorneys, DuRelle & Fleece, of Louisville, and W. L. Krone, of Kuttawa, for damages imposed in the sum of $50,000 in the former case and $25,000 in the latter. They assert they were living in this city in February of last year and were visited by night riders, taken from their homes, beaten, whipped and treated in a violent manner.

This petition states in part that both parties were residing in Kentucky in the latter part of the winter of 1907, at the time when such a great amount of strife was existing during the tobacco war in western Kentucky and when this part of the state was so infested with night riders. From time to time numerous depredations had been committed in this and about adjoining counties, several men receiving warnings to join the association at the peril of their lives or whatever punishment that clan deemed necessary to impose. Some obeyed the commands immediately, while others were reluctant in complying with the warnings, but were frightened into submission. Rucker in his official capacity was opposed to these outbreaks of lawlessness and his criticisms were frequent concerning the terror this band had caused to exist in these several counties. Woods was also opposed to threats and intimidations used to force people against their will to become members of that organization. Each of the plaintiffs received warnings to the effect that they were "talking too much" about matters connected with this so-called "silent brigade" and the crimes its members had committed in the several raids. Thinking that the broadness of this organization's membership was not sufficient to overawe the laws of state and being under the impression that all men holding high and honorable as well as official positions were officers of law and order, the petition recites:

WHAT THE PETITION RECITES.

"That pursuant to said object and purpose of said corporation and said association the growers, handlers and owners of said dark tobacco in said counties were invited and solicited to join said county associations and to pool and pledge their tobacco and enter an agreement with said associations and all other citizens, whomsoever, and especially all circuit and county court judges, police judges, sheriffs and constables and officers of the law, including magistrates and all persons holding official positions of trust and honor in said counties, as well as laborers were invited to join said county associations and give their active co-operation and support in furthering and advancing the purpose and object of said corporation."

Prior to these depredations the petition says there was a corporation organized under the laws of the state of New York called the Dark Tobacco District Planters' Protective association of Kentucky, Virginia and Tennessee, and the purpose of this organization, in what is known as the "Dark Tobacco Belt," was to secure the active co-operation of all producers, handlers and buyers and to induce these people to sign a pledge thus pooling their product, not permitting them to dispose of tobacco until authority was received from executive officers of the organization. Associations were established in each of the five counties in this district to create and establish in this corporation a monopoly of said dark tobacco by pooling this tobacco in such a manner would enable them to fix a selling price at a much higher rate. Any one refusing to join this organization were subjected to a most unmerciful punishment by whipping with thorn bushes and buggy whips by this silent brigade of night riders, which organization was secretly combined and confederated together for the purpose of compelling whole people to join against their will and for furthering the object of this order in bringing about a combination in the tobacco market. Continuing in regard to this secret society, the petition reads as follows:

TAFT RECEIVES DEMONSTRATIONS

Declares That the South Has Won Him.

Guard Her Interests the Same as Those of North so Far Chief Executive Can Do.

TARIFF REVISION PROMISED.

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 16.—President-elect Taft has been in the cordial and social embrace of Georgia all day. Recognizing the climax of the varied and continuous demonstrations in the brilliant and imposing scene presented at the banquet here, he exclaimed with evidence of great feeling: "I had not hoped to win the south, but the south has won me."

The banquet was the most ambitious event of its kind the city has ever undertaken.

Atlanta's Welcome.

Atlanta's welcome to Taft began in the railroad yards where all the locomotives tied open their whistles and coaxed only when he had retired for the night. Thousands were at the station, and thousands followed him through the streets as he was drawn by four horses to the capital. Governor Smith and a committee of seventy gave him a formal reception, after which the governor presented him to the crowd, and Taft once more voiced the reciprocity of cordiality and good feeling at his reception. He was escorted by a squad of mounted police to the chamber of commerce, and the Ohio and Yale Alumni. On his trip here he made speeches at Thompson, Crawfordsville, Greensboro, Madison, Social Circle and Decatur.

In his banquet speech Taft spoke of the tolerance of political opinion now prevailing in the south, the president-elect summarized the causes which had worked and were effecting this change—the Spanish war; the attitude of McKinley, his lovable character and the principles he stood for in his campaigns; the succession of Roosevelt with his Georgia mother, and finally the wonderful business development of the south. He pointed out the advantage to the nation of having a strong minority party, and the advantage that would accrue to the south in the existence of a strong minority party in the southern states—an intelligent minority which may become a successful majority in the punishment of abuses that are likely to grow out of a long continued and undisputed control of one party. He spoke of the non-partisan character of the greetings he had received during the day and of the absence of partisanship at the meeting.

Talks on Politics.
"Now," he said, "if this indirectly makes, not for partisan advantage, but for the continuance of the movement in favor of independence of speech and action and political tolerance, its result is one that all citizens of whatever political party, must rejoice to have brought about."

As to the next administration and its relations towards the south, he said its work will "be more of creation and of construction." The south is as much interested in the revision of the tariff as the north, and he said there would be "an honest and genuine revision such as has been promised by the party in power."

GOOSE QUILL PENS IN USE.

Present-Day Writers Don't Know Them, But Some Use Nothing Else.

It seems queer that, considering the abundance, excellence, and especially the cheapness, of steel pens, anybody should prefer the old goose quills, but there are some people who do. They are mostly foreigners, Bohemians, Hungarians and Russians, generally men well along in years, who have been using quills all their lives and have an idea that writing can hardly be done at all except with a goose quill.

There is an old Russian, formerly a school-master, living on Wash street, who makes pens for his countrymen and mends them, too, for mending a quill pen is about as important and essential as the making, as very few people can write with a quill pen more than an hour or two without getting it out of order.

Every great work of literature before the middle of the nineteenth century was written with a goose quill. The poetry of Spenser, Chaucer and Milton, the plays of Shakespeare, the philosophy of Bacon—in fact, all the literature of every country in modern times, all the music of Handel and Bach, Mozart and Haydn and Beethoven, owes its existence to the goose quill.

How the geniuses could express their thoughts with such pens seems inconceivable to anyone who has ever tried to write with a quill. One would suppose that the writer's attention would be so much taken up with the pen that he would not have room in his mind for anything but objections at the necessity of writing with such a miserable implement for it drops the ink in great daubs, catches in the paper and splatters and on the slightest provocation splits up the back and becomes useless.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The man who condones a neighbor's sin is often preparing his own repentance in advance.—February Smart Set.

A. R. Lewis, M. D., in a lengthy article in the columns of the American Journal of Health, says concerning hair: "Its deterioration is a constant source of worry to humanity, consequently bald people are readily deceived by 'fake' hair restoratives. The wish that a hair preparation will 'fill the bill' is father to the fancy that it is likely to do so. A rare case in point is that of Newbro's Herpicide, which actually does 'fill the bill.' It destroys the parasite that attacks the hair root, and prevents dandruff, falling hair and baldness." Sold by leading druggists. Two sizes, 50c and $1.00. News of Theatres

AT THE KENTUCKY.

Tuesday night—Duncan Clark's Minstrels.

Wednesday night—Florence Davis, in "Under the Greenwood Tree."

Thursday night—"Buster Brown."

Florence Davis.

There has always been a large proportion of theatergoers in Paducah who admire legitimate comedy of the finest sort; the kind that represents intellect in the man who created it; of the delightful style in which Henry V. Esmond excels as a playwright, and his latest and most successful comedy, "Under the Greenwood Tree," will therefore serve as an admirable vehicle to introduce Florence Davis, whose talent for this delightful style of entertainment has established her high among dramatic stars all over America. Miss Davis will be seen in this new comedy at the Kentucky Wednesday night with a well chosen company, including Elliott Dexter in the leading male role. As its verdant title suggests, "Under the Greenwood Tree" is laid principally in the shade of the forest, with an idyllic love story woven prettily throughout its four acts of sunny humor, merry lines and laughable incidents, with amusing characters and bright dialogue. Mary Hamilton, a rich young society girl, flees from tiresome and vain society, escaping a train of matrimonial fortune hunters by voluntary exile in a secluded woodland nook. Camping in a gypsy van with her feminine secretary, she encounters her first love affair where she least expects it. A young "Squire" who comes to turn the campers out of his domains, falls a victim to love at first sight, and Mary returns his affections. The happy ending need hardly be told. The interest of the plot and the humor of its ingenious situations are further contributed to by a ridiculous young English nobleman and Mary's chauffeur, who have followed her; Peggy, her worldly-wise cynical secretary; a band of desperate thieves, gypsies, and other well-drawn personalities. It was in "Under the Greenwood Tree" that Maxine Elliott made her crowning success in London and New York, and Miss Davis has succeeded to the stellar role for its first American tour. It is presented with the entire lavish Garrick theater (New York) production, and Miss Davis and Mr. Dexter are surrounded by a notable cast, including Edward van Sloan, Mary Milburn, William E. Kendall, George E. Brown, Theodore Dudley, J. H. Doyle, Albert Hood, Edward Wells, Flora Parks and others.

"Buster Brown."

"Hall to the King of Mischief Makers," is said to be the greeting accorded to the new "Buster Brown" everywhere it has been presented this season. This little rascal will be seen at the Kentucky theater Thursday, January 21. It goes without saying that he will be accompanied by "Tige" and "Mary Jane," each of whom is a willing accessory to his mischief making. But that is not all, for Buster is a youngster who has an eye for beauty. He therefore insisted that he be surrounded with a chorus of pretty girls in the most beautiful costumes that could be designed, and this was done. Then there is music and singing and dancing, besides a lot of

S.S.S. THE ONLY REMEDY FOR BLOOD POISON

S. S. S. is the one and only reliable and certain cure for Contagious Blood Poison. This claim is not based on the treatment of a few cases of the disease, here and there, but its success extends over a period of more than forty years, during which time thousands upon thousands have found a cure by the use of this great vegetable remedy. S. S. S. is first of all, an absolutely perfect blood purifier, able to go down into the blood and remove every particle of the virus of Contagious Blood Poison. It cleanses and purifies the circulation, and in this way removes the cause of the trouble. Then nature, assisted by a rich, healthy blood supply, quickly renovates and renews the system, while the symptoms of ulcerated mouth and throat, skin eruptions, discolored spots, falling hair, sores and ulcers, etc., disappear, leaving the body entirely free from the effects of this insidious poison. When S. S. S. has thoroughly cleansed and purified the circulation there is no danger of any future outbreak—the blood is pure and the cause of the disease entirely removed. YOUTH.

I am the unquiet sister with the old, wild beautiful eyes,
Who went forth from my home to seek;
I am the immortal child who yearned for the moon and star-sown skies;
I am the dreaming girl who burned for the touch of god on her cheek.

I am the young unquiet sister with the young, ancient beautiful eyes,
Whose feet with morning were shod,
I have traveled the long, long road where the caravan smoke and the golden dust up-flies;

I am the dreaming girl who awoke and discovered a vanishing god.
I am the unquiet sister with the gray, roving beautiful eyes,
Who plucked at the world in its bloom.

Oh, to be as I was at first, transparent, eager, unwise!
For the clear little brook I thirst
When I drank when the day was young,
And the door of my girlhood's room.

I am the unquiet sister with the old, wild beautiful eyes,
I have seen so many things—
Hope decanted in a slightest tower and graves for questionings,
Love that endured for an hour and the eyes of wounded things.

I would like to go back once more, creep back, dark-foot in the rain,
And timidly knock at the door I left,
I can never go back again.

A WOMAN'S APPEAL.

To all knowing sufferers of rheumatism, whether in acute or chronic form, sciatica, lumbago, bursitis, pains in the joints or neuroma, who have repeatedly tried all of the advertised remedies, I have found relief in the use of the "Knee" and "Foot" pads. You cure yourself at home as thousands will testify—no change of climate being necessary. This simple discovery banishes a sore from the blood, lessens the stiffened joints, gives elasticity and tone to the whole system. If the above interests you, I will gladly address Mrs. W. Sumner, Box 8, South Bend, Ind.

The music will be in charge of Mrs. Lela Wade Lewis and Mrs. William C. Gray.

The invited guests to meet the Confederate Veterans and the Daughters of the Confederacy will be: The Executive Board of the Woman's club, the Paducah chapter, D. A. R., and the faculty of the Lee School, Prof. J. M. Calvin, and his corps of teachers.

Beautiful Linen Shower for Miss Frances Terrell.

A most charmingly appointed party was the Linen Shower given by Mrs. Eli G. Boone on Friday afternoon in honor of Miss Frances Terrell, who will be married on January 26.

The pretty home was effectively decorated in a profusion of hearts, which were suspended in clusters from the chandeliers, in the doorways and about the rooms. The colors green and white were artistically emphasized throughout. A divan covered with draperies of green and white was arranged in the parlor as a seat for the bride-elect at the presentation of the gifts.

Miss Carline Sowell and Miss Angie Thomas welcomed the guests in the hall and received the linen shower gifts that were brought.

Receiving with Mrs. Boone in the parlor were Mrs. Richard Gilliam Terrell, Miss Frances Terrell, Mrs. Leslie B. Samuels, of Bardstown.

In the dining-room were Mrs. Paul Province, Mrs. Charles Thompson, Miss Mildred Terrell, Miss Hattie Terrell, Miss Hallie Hisey and Miss Anne Boswell. The table was an artistic effect in green and white. The centerpiece and four doilies at the corners were of Cluny lace showing to pretty advantage on the polished wood surface of the table. A cut glass bowl of green and white carnations was on a round mirror in the center. Cut glass dishes of green and white mints added to the color scheme. A delightful salad course luncheon with frozen punch in the green and white motif was served.

An attractive program marked the Linen Shower presentation. Mrs. Melvin Wallerstein sang with exquisite effect two love songs, "Because" and an old-time Irish ballad just preceding it. Little Elsie Eunice Voris entered first with a tiny key on a green cushion and was followed by little Susan Porter Sleeth, Elizabeth Smith, Anna Webb Phillips, Lena Uterback and La Verne Purcell, drawing by the green ribbons a large heart-shaped wooden box, painted white and ornamented with a green vine border and the monogram, "T. and M." in green. Reciting a pretty couplet the five children, who wore pretty fingerless socks of white, lifted the box to a stool at the foot of the bride-elect and the tiny padlock was opened with the key. Before the packages were untied Miss Carrie Riecke read a clever little poem written by Mrs. George Langstaff, Jr., to Miss Terrell.

As the last gift was opened Miss Adine Morton read a pretty poem entitled "Prophecy," written by Miss Anna Webb for the occasion. The dainty gifts of linen were delightfully varied and included many pretty souvenirs for the winsome bride-elect. Miss Frances Terrell was lovely in a tulle gown of pink satin made director, with touches of black satin and self-toned embroidered bands, and a picture hat of black velvet.

Mrs. Boone wore a handsome reception toilette of blue satin with burnt orange trimmings.

Mrs. Richard Terrell was gowned in a white wool and lace costume and Daily Thought.

Never talk of failure in anything—Newcomb.

A municipal slush fund could be used now.

Earl of Granard took his grist to a good mill.

Chicago dealers object to marking numbers plainly on footwear. We see where the shoe pinches.

King Alfonso, of Spain, a news dispatch says, will buy an aeroplane and risk his own neck in it. But he does not take as great risk as the ordinary person, at that.

"Posters, displaying nude figures, advertising union suits and corsets, will hereafter be barred," says a resolution of the National Billposters' association. How the styles change. Next year it will be stripes or plaids.

INTERPRETING THE LAW.

Sometimes we think George Walters and his legal adviser, the News-Democrat, are approaching the light on the license question, only to see them side step again into the shadow of duplicity. Mr. Walters in a display "ad," which we hope he paid for, announced:

"Since I entered upon the discharge of the duties of the treasurer of this city I have endeavored to act in conjunction and harmony with the chief executive of the city and his legal advisor, the city solicitor, and have endeavored to carry out the law as interpreted by these gentlemen. My duties are ministerial and not judicial. I had no connection with the passage of this obnoxious ordinance neither have I any right to undertake to interpret any part of it."

But when we learn that the city solicitor advised him that the mayor is the referee in case of dispute and that the mayor said merchants are not liable for cumulative licenses, and furthermore that George Walters undertook to interpret the ordinance differently from the mayor, we know that in spite of his fine words and display ad, he has not "endeavored to act in conjunction and harmony" and to "carry out the law as interpreted by these gentlemen."

The News-Democrat in excuse of Mr. Walters for asking for quadruple license fees, said:

"We do know that one merchant who conducts a book store with a soda fountain in connection was told by a city official in authority that the ordinance meant that he should pay a separate tax on each department operating in his place of business."

It also knows that the "official in authority" was George Walters, who says he has no right to interpret the ordinance.

Then consider the following:

"The provisions of the law are plain as the words used can make and the license inspector and the courts alone can translate the ordinance. Those who have to pay licenses under the ordinance will find Treasurer Walters and Clerk McIntyre advised on its provisions and all they will have to do is to comply with or resist them."

So we observe the News-Democrat agrees with The Sun in theory that the license inspector, and never the treasurer or clerk, first interprets the law.

law; but in practice it reverts to "Poo Bah" McIntyre and Adventurer Walters.

The mistake the merchants, who found themselves confronted with extortionate demands, made was in offering their money to Walters instead of City Treasurer Dorian.

A foreigner visiting in this country might think vicarious sacrifice is the principle of the American jury system, observing how often the jury is hung for other men's crimes.

Opposition newspapers are striving hard to manufacture differences between Governor Willson and other officeholders at Frankfort; but there is no occasion for it.

And there stood John Sharp Williams. Just as The Sun began to fear the minority in congress had lost his leadership, he stepped into the breach and confounded the anti-administration Republicans, who had abused the president to their hearts' content, and expected with Democratic aid, to publish their remarks at a cost of $68,000 for random distribution. After they had committed themselves, the minority left them discarded partisans, unsanctioned by the vote of congress.

CALLOWAY'S TROUBLES.

Concerning the decision of Chairman W. A. Berry, of the First congressional district Democratic committee, recognizing N. L. Christman, as chairman of Calloway county, the Murray Ledger says:

The decision is sweeping in effect and radically at variance with actual occurrences. It is claimed by friends of the five committeemen that the matter will be further prosecuted.

And promises to say something pertinent—or impertinent—next week.

IN MERRY ENGLAND.

England finds herself in an absurd predicament. For years her nobility—God save the word—has been perpetuated as a class by the descendants of the British yeomanry, more as an institution than anything else, like drones in the hive, utterly useless, decadent and growing worse from generation to generation; but still part of the traditional England, and the English are great on tradition and willing to pay it. She has maintained a House of Lords, to counterbalance the Commons. She has allowed the nobility to hold fully one-tenth the land in England, and most of it is in game "preserves." The House of Lords is not responsible to anybody, and its only function apparently is to maintain the prerogatives of its class. As long as they are not threatened the Lords agree with any measure the commons propose.

Now, England created a deficit of about twenty-five millions last year taking care of its indigent population, and a Liberal party is in control of the Commons. It suggested itself to the good sense of the Liberals that, if all the land of England was under cultivation, a great part of the starving population would be taken care of and the national budget cut materially. The Commons passed a bill, looking to that end, and the Lords promptly rejected it.

There's the issue and the Liberals propose to fight it out on that issue to the abolition of the House of Lords, or its transformation into an elective body.

In the meantime, the Liberals have been aided by such "outrages" as are reported from Cardiff, Wales, where a body of starving men took possession of preserves and began cultivating them. Such action recalls the small war between landlords and tenants in this country. We have laws limiting the entailing of estates. In England they are entailed and entailed, until each successive generation has only a life estate and cannot alienate his ancestral acres.

As certain as anything in this world those English estates will be put under cultivation and the House of Lords eventually made amenable to the will of the country.

Perfect Frankness.

According to the New York Press, "Uncle Joe" Cannon was discussing jealously our society leader's claim that too many statesmen appear to rely on their untruthfulness on the absence of socks, etc.—for their fame. "I would point out," said he, that neither Caesar nor Alexander wore socks, and if I had attacked New York society as frankly as this person has attacked public life I might—but after all, perfect frankness is invariably a good thing.

You have heard, perhaps, of the young man who admired perfect frankness? Calling on a pretty girl, he said:

"If there is one thing I reverence in this world, perfect frankness is the thing."

"Yes," said the girl. "Then I'll at once grasp the opportunity to urge you to shave off your moustache before you eat another soft-boiled egg."

He isn't much of a baker who eats all the bread he kneads.

Sophy of Kravonia.

They mounted on to the city wall just by the gate and leaned against the molding parapets. Below lay Lake Taiti in the moonlight, and beyond it the masses of the mountains. Yet while Sophy talked Dunstanbury's eyes seldom left her face—may, once or twice he caught himself not listening, but only looking, tracing how she had grown from Sophy Grouch in her scullery to this. He had never forgotten the strange girl. Once or twice he and Basil had talked of her. He had resented Lady Meg's brusque and unceremonious dismissal of her protégé. In his memory, half overgrown, now here she was, in Kravonia, of all places—Baroness Dobrava, of all people! And what else, who knew? The train of events which had brought this about was strange, yet his greater wonder was for the woman herself.

"And here we are!" she ended, with a "wonderful smile." "If monseigneur lives I think we shall win. For the moment we can do no more than hold Volsen. I think we can do that. But presently, when he's better and can lead us, we shall attack. Down in Slavna they won't be long ruled by the countsess and Sionovics as much as they expect. Little by little we shall grow stronger. Her voice rose a little. "At last monseigneur will sit firm on his throne," she said. "Then we'll see what we can do for Kravonia. It's a fine country and rich, Lord Dunstanbury, and outside Slavna the people are good material. We shall be able to make it very different if monseigneur lives."

"And if not?" he asked in a low voice.

"What is it to me except for monseigneur? If he dies"—Her hands thrown wide in a gesture of despair ended her sentence.

If she lived and worked for Kravonia it was for monseigneur's sake. Without him, what was Kravonia to her? Such was her mood. Plainly she took no pains to conceal it from Dunstanbury. The next moment she turned to him, with a smile. "You think I talk strangely, saying, 'We'll do this and that.' Yes, you must, and it's suddenly become strange to me to say it—to say it to you, because you've brought back the old things to my mind, and all this is so out of keeping with the old things—with Sophy Grouch and Julia Robbins and Moringham! But until you came it didn't seem strange. Everything that has happened since I came to this country seemed to leap up to it—to bring it about naturally and irresistibly. I forgot till just now how foolish it must sound to you—and how—how bad, I suppose. Well, you must accustom yourself to Kravonia. It's not Essex, you know."

"If the king lives?" he asked.

"I shall be with monseigneur if he lives," she answered.

Yes, it was strange. Yet already, even now—when he had known her again for half an hour, had seen her and talked to her—gradually and insidiously it began to seem less strange, less fantastic, more natural. Dunstanbury had to give himself a mental shake to get back to Essex and to Sophy Grouch. Volsen set old and gray amid the hills, the king whose breath struggled with his blood for life, the beautiful woman who would be with the king if and so long as he lived—these were the present realities he saw in vivid immediate vision. They made the shadows of the past seem not indeed dim—they kept all their distinctness of outline in memory—but in their turn fantastic and in no relation to the actual. Was that the air of Kravonia working on him or was it a woman's voice, the pallid pride of a woman's face?

"In Slavna they call me a witch," she said, "and tell terrible tales about this little mark—my red star—but here in Volsen they like me—yes, and I can win over Slavna, too, if I get the opportunity. No, I shan't be a weakness to monseigneur if he lives."

"You'll be?"

"His wife?" she interrupted. "Yes."

She smiled again—nay, almost laughed. "That seems worst of all—worse than anything else?"

Dunstanbury allowed himself to smile too. "Well, yes, of course that's true," he said. "Out of Kravonia anyhow. What's true in Kravonia I really don't know yet."

"I suppose it's true in Kravonia, too, but what I tell you is monseigneur's will about me."

He looked hard at her. "You love him?" he asked.

"As my life, and more," said Sophy simply.

At last Dunstanbury ceased to look at her. He laid his elbows on the battlements and stood there, his eyes roaming over the lake in the valley to the mountains beyond. Sophy left his side and began to walk slowly up and down the rugged, uneven, overgrown surface of the walls.

The moon was sinking in the sky. There would be three or four dark hours before dawn. A man galloped up to the gate and gave a countersign in return to a challenge; the heavy gates rolled open; he rode in; another rode out and cantered off along the road toward Praslok. There was watch and ward. Volsen was not to be caught napping as Praslok had been. Whether the king lived or died, his Volsenians were on guard. Dunstanbury turned his back on the hills and came up to Sophy.

"We Essex folk ought to stand by one another," he said. "It's the merest chance that has brought me here, but I'm glad of the chance now, and it's beginning to feel not the least strange."

So long as you've need of help count me among your soldiers."
 "But you oughtn't to mix yourself up—"
 "Did you act on that principle when you came to Kravonia?"
 With a smile Sophy gave him her hand. "So be it. I accept your service—for monseigneur."

"I give it to you," he persisted.

"Yes, and all that is mine I give to monseigneur," said Sophy.

Any man who meets or after an interval of time again meets an attractive woman only to find that her thoughts are pre-occupied and totally preoccupied suffers an annoyance not the less real because he sees the absurdity of it. It is to find her shut a gate which with better luck might have been open. The unusual circumstances of his new encounter with Sophy did not save Dunstanbury from this common form of chagrin. The tragic element in her situation gave it a rather uncommon flavor. He would fain have appeared as the knight errant to rescue such beauty in such distress, but the nature of the distress did not seem favorable to the proper romantic sequel.

He made his offer of service to her. She assigned him to the service of monseigneur! He laughed at his own annoyance and determined to serve monseigneur as well as he could. At the same time, while conceding most amply the choice of a bride. That was doubtless a sample of how things were done in Kravonia. He lived to feel the excuse more strongly and to pronounce the judgment with greater hesitation.

Sophy had given him her hand again as she accepted his offer in monseigneur's name. He had not yet released it when she was called from the street below in a woman's voice—a voice full of haste and alarm.

"Marie Zerkovitch calls me! I must go at once," she said. "I expect monseigneur is awake." She hurried off, with a nod of farewell.

Dunstanbury stayed a little while on the wall, smoking a cigarette, and then went down into the street. The door of the guardhouse was shut. All was very quiet as he passed along to the market place, where the inn was situated. He went up to his room overlooking the street and, taking off his coat only, flung himself on the bed. He was minded thus to await Basil Williamson's return with news of the king, but the excitement of the day had wearied him. In ten minutes he was sound asleep.

He was aroused by Basil Williamson's hand on his shoulder. The young doctor, a slim built, dark, wiry fellow, looked very weary and sad.

"How has it gone?" asked Dunstanbury, sitting up.

The ABC and XYZ of ADVERTISING

A SERIES OF TEN TALKS ON ADVERTISING No. 7
 Given by Seymour Eaton of Philadelphia

The advertising science is anything but exact. It is an easy matter to diagnose symptoms. But in advertising, as in medicine, very different causes produce very similar disturbances; eye strain, a wabbly steamer deck, or green watermelon; each means an upset stomach.

But there are some broad general principles which are as permanent as the eternal hills.

Mouth to mouth talk is the great secret of popular advertising success. As a general rule people are short on talk. They are always running out. The hopper must be fed. The shrewd advertiser scores every time he produces a new topic of conversation. If he fails to make people talk about his goods he makes them talk about himself. They wash with his soap or drink his tea or rub on his axle grease just to get in touch with him.

Talk can be created about the most commonplace things; baked beans or tooth powder or linen collars. You need only to know what switch to turn on.

Human nature has not differed for six thousand years; but the point of view is constantly changing.

If the people remained the same; if business conditions remained the same; if society and the weather remained the same, then the advertising of last year would apply this year. But it doesn't. The point of view is different. We are in a continuous turmoil of change. The successful advertiser must live right up even with the clock. Advertise every day to meet the conditions of today. An advertisement that made a big hit last year may fall flat and dead this year. There is in everything a fullness of time; a season when the fruit is ripe; periods when all conditions seem to lend themselves to success. The advertiser must have discernment sharp enough and vision clear enough to know the year and the month and the day of the month in which the people are not only living, but in which they are thinking.

WEATHER

HAS BEEN FACTOR IN LOCAL BUSINESS SITUATION.

The weather has been a factor in business the past week, interfering some with retail and wholesale business as well as manufacturing. Retailers have had big sales on rubbers, shoes, mufflers and underwear, and overcoats and clothing have moved freely at reduced prices, however. This cold snap has been the first real winter weather we have had, however, the predictions are for more, which will be an impetus to movement of winter goods. Traveling men have been somewhat hampered in making drives through the country, but are feeling confident of a good season ahead. "It is much easier to sell your line this January than it was a year ago," was the reply one salesman today to an interrogation about business.

A good deal of tobacco has come in this week despite the weather, and prices have been fairly satisfactory to all concerned.

Building and improvements have been brought to a temporary stop by the weather but active operations will resume as soon as it breaks. Local architects report more building in prospect for the spring than in years, and contractors are anticipating a busy season.

IN SOCIAL CIRCLES

Interesting Lecture Series for Women's Club.

The series of lectures to be presented here under the auspices of the Women's club on February 8, 9 and 10, if the arrangements can be perfected, promises to be an event of unusual distinction from a literary viewpoint for Paducah. Guy Carleton Lee, Ph. D., L. L. D., is a man of marked force and virility. As historian, publicist, orator, he has filled prominent posts. For 12 years he has been a member of the John Hopkins University; he has been editor of the Baltimore Sun, Pittsburgh Sun, Pittsburgh Post, Syracuse Herald and Los Angeles Times. He is a teacher, author, editor-in-chief, and lecturer of note. The three lectures to be delivered here are said to be his finest and most inspirational: "Victorious Womanhood," "The Strength of the People," "A Nation Triumphant." In addition to the evening lectures he will have an afternoon symposium which will be free to all holders of season tickets.

Pleasant River Trip.

Mrs. M. G. Cope, Mr. and Mrs. Saunders A. Fowler and Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Riker made the trip from Paducah to Cairo yesterday afternoon on the U. S. S. Golden Rod. The party from Paducah were the guests of Capt. C. M. Stone, commander of the government boat. A fine course dinner was served on the boat to the guests of Captain Stone and the trip was most enjoyable. The party returned this morning from Cairo on the train.

Secret Marriage Just Announced.

It was just announced today after being kept secret for a week that Miss Mary Farrell and Mr. Zela Fowler were married last Monday morning at Marion, Ill. The young couple went to Marion last Sunday to visit relatives and were married while there. Miss Farrell is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Farrell, of 1130 North Tenth street. She is an attractive young woman of the brunette type and has been engaged at the Kozzy and Star theaters for several months selling tickets. Mr. Fowler is a promising young man of this city and is machine operator at the Kozzy theater. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Fowler, of 1091 Madison street. The couple did not tell their families anything about the marriage until today.

Mrs. James Young Recovering From Illness.

The many friends here of Mrs. Flora May Clark Young, who several weeks ago had to resign her engagement with Mr. Norman Hackett in "Classmates" and go to Denver for her health, will be glad to learn that she is showing signs of decided improvement, although still very ill, and may be confined to her bed for several weeks yet. Two weeks ago when most critically ill, her husband, Mr. James A. Young, who is with the Louisville company, was summoned to her bedside, but joined his company this week as her physician considers her now quite out of danger. Her sister, Mrs. H. H. Cleugh, who has been with her during her illness, will remain until she is completely recovered, before coming to Paducah to spend the remainder of the winter with her mother. Mrs. S. H. Clark, 901 Clay street.

Popular in Paducah.

Mrs. W. H. Clarke will entertain a dozen girls of the debutante set at luncheon next Tuesday to compliment her sister, Miss Mary Bringham, of Clarksville. Nashville Banner.

Both Mrs. Clarke and Miss Bringham have visited in Paducah, the guests of their cousins, Misses Julia Scott and Mary Scott, 725 Madison street. They are the sisters of Mr. E. H. Bringham, of this city.

Memphis Man Known Here.

Friday's Nashville Banner says: "Morgan Ketchum, who has many friends in Nashville, underwent a serious operation in Memphis yesterday, and Walton Ketchum, his brother who is here as a member of the legislature, was summoned home yesterday to his bedside. Mrs. Morgan Ketchum was formerly Miss Marion Kirkland, of Nashville."

Mr. Ketchum is a son of Mrs. F. M. McLaughery, 235 North Seventh street, and both he and his wife have many friends in Paducah. Mrs. McLaughery is now in Memphis, where she went last week to be present at the operation. As yet the doctors are non-committal.

Miss Caroline Ham, of 813 North Sixth street, will leave tonight to resume her vocal study under Prof. Charles Singinger.

Miss Mabel Epperheimer, 1524 Trimble street, has gone to Golconda on a short visit to friends.

Mrs. H. Cunningham returned from Fulton this morning after a visit. Mr. F. W. Katterjohn went to Cedar Bluff this morning.

Mr. F. G. Schmitt, of Henderson,

THE secret of the great success of American manufacturing industries is found in the motive that prompts the average American to buy American made goods.

The same spirit should animate all citizens of a town. They should pride themselves on spending their money AT HOME.

Every season, representatives of tailoring firms from other cities come into Paducah and carry away hundreds of dollars in orders from people who should be spending that money IN PADUCAH.

These representatives are here now, on their season's visit, but this time they should be turned down—ALL your money should be spent AT HOME.

Paducah merchant tailors are responsible men, employing first-class workmen—men who live and spend their all in Paducah. Over 90 per cent of the money paid for a suit made in Paducah stays RIGHT HERE.

Money spent for a Louisville made suit leaves the city.

But, it should require no forcible arguments to make any man see the soundness of that point. A moment's consideration of the journey of a dollar paid out for PADUCAH MADE articles is sufficient in itself.

The Paducah tailor pays his workmen each week; these men in turn pay their money to the grocer, the coal man, milk man, the butcher, and it starts on a continuous round of ALL trade channels in the city.

Of the money paid for an outfit of town made suit, fifty cents of it goes to the hotels, the rest out of town.

returned to Henderson today after a business trip in the city. Mr. Schmitt formerly lived in Paducah as he was manager of the branch of the Henderson Brewing company.

Mr. H. C. Richards returned to his home in Hopkinsville today after a trip on business.

Mrs. John L. Webb, 813 Madison street, made a mis-step in coming down stairs yesterday afternoon, and sprained her ankle and shoulders. She is resting more comfortably today.

Mrs. G. A. Herms, of 626 Kentucky avenue, left today for Louisville to visit relatives for a few days.

Mrs. J. C. Cline, of Louisville, was in the city today on route home from a visit to her parents at Golconda.

W. C. Wagner, of Princeton, supervisor of the I. C. railroad, is in the city on business today.

Mr. Finis Lack, who has been ill all week with the grip is convalescing. Capt. Grover Carroll, of Golconda, is improving at the Riverside hospital.

Mrs. William Carroll Latimer, of Atlanta, Ga., who has been on a several weeks' visit to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George C. Wallace, 331 North Ninth street, returned home today.

Enjoyable Social Affair.

The revival at the First Christian church is fast approaching high water mark. Great interest is manifested in President Crossfield's sermons and in Professor Sturgis' singing. The sermon last night was one of the very best of the series so far. The audience was larger than on previous nights and a deeper interest manifested. After the service the large audience was invited into the lecture room to meet the evangelists and enjoy a social hour. The ladies served coffee and dainty sandwiches, and good cheer and fellowship prevailed. Many good people of other churches remained and added to the enjoyment of the occasion.

Tonight the subject will be: "Thou God Seest," and the sermon no doubt will appeal to the consciences of the people. The lecture on Sunday school work will be given as usual at 4 o'clock. The attendance at these lectures is increasing very perceptibly. Sunday morning at 9:30 o'clock there will be a rally of the Sunday school when it is expected the attendance will, at least, be doubled. Sermon 10:45, "Christians in Antioch." At 7:30 p. m., "Almost But Lost." Sunday promises to be a day of great victory. Friends are kindly invited to all these services.

Lone Oak Dedication.

Bishop E. E. Hoss, of the M. E. church, south, will dedicate the Lone Oak Methodist church, recently completed, on March 21. The dedication services will be held in the morning and at night Bishop Hoss will preach at the Broadway Methodist church, a virile thinker. He has visited Paducah before and is popular here. Before being made bishop he was the editor of the Nashville Christian Advocate, the official organ of the M. E. church, south. He presided at the last session of the Memphis conference.

Douglas Jones, et al., in admiralty, vs. Steamer Scotia.

Whereas libels have been filed in the District Court of the United States, for the Western District of Kentucky, at Paducah, on December 24th, 29th and 30th, 1908, by Douglas Jones, West Kentucky Coal Co., and Ayer & Lord Tie Co., against the steamer Scotia, her engines, tackle, apparel, furniture, etc., and owners, alleging in substance that said boat owes to them jointly in the sum of $853.30, for barge hire, coal, supplies, etc., that same has never been paid, and pray process against said steamer Scotia, that same may be condemned and sold to pay said claims, with cost and expenses.

Now, therefore, in pursuance to the motion under seal of said court, to me directed, I do hereby give public notice to all persons claiming said boat Scotia, or in any way interested therein, that they be and appear before the District Court of the United States in the city of Paducah, Kentucky, on or before the 1st day of March, 1909, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, then and there to interpose their claims and make all their allegations in that behalf.

SPIRITS OF THE MIST.

Their gray robes trail over hill and valley,
Their soft wings cover the plains afar;
When the veil of night hides the world from sight
Clasped on her brow by a lonely star.

Their soft-shod feet press the woodland grasses
Where violets mourn till the day's return.
They whisper low, as the South winds blow
And the dawn in the East begins to burn.

Thro' the dark green aisles of Southern forests;
Where the fiery waves his torch of gold,
Their veils of grey in the twilight sway,
Like silken flags to the breeze unrolled.

The fleecy folds of their velvet mantles
Cover the scars on the wind-swept plain
Where the cannons mowed, and the life-blood flowed
In battle's harvest of death and pain.

They stand with outspread wings at midnight
Where the storm-swept ocean in anger raves,
Where the lonely bark o'er the waters dark
Drives to her doom in its sunless caves.

They gather at eve, when the gates of sunset
Swing wide, and the West is flecked with fire
And their vesper hymn thro' the shadows dim
Floats 'round the dead hours' funeral pyre.

Snow as a Fertilizer.

From experiments conducted in Ottawa, in Canada, it appears that there are some slight grounds for the widely-accepted opinion among agriculturists that snow is a direct fertilizer, says the Pharmaceutical Journal. It is found to contain total nitrogen equivalent in round numbers to about a pound per acre of land covered by an average winter snowfall in that district. The amount of nitrogen as free ammonia was high, but fluctuated greatly, from 0.082 to 0.580 parts per million; the nitrogen was albuminoid ammonia ranged from 0.023 to 0.078 parts per million, and the nitrogen as nitrates and nitrites ranged from 0.027 to 0.390 parts per million. The average of twelve determinations from February 21, 1907, to May 4, was, nitrogen, as free ammonia 0.056 as albuminoid ammonia, 0.052, and as nitrates and nitrites 0.163 parts per million. The value of snow as a direct fertilizer would appear, so far as the nitrogen content is concerned, to be greatly overestimated. It is intended to continue the experiments both in summer and winter to determine definitely the manurial value of both snow and rain.—Scientific American.

LABOR MEN

RIGHT OF ASYLUM FOR POLITICAL REFUGEES GONE INTO.

Declared United States Had Been Persuaded to Hold Persons on Criminal Charges.

Washington, Jan. 16.—President Roosevelt and the members of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor had a long conference today upon the subject of the right of asylum in the United States for political refugees. The labor leaders present were Samuel Gompers, Frank Morrison, John B. Lennon, James Duncan, John Mitchell, James O. Connell, Max Morris, D. A. Hayes, William B. Huber, John F. Valentine and John R. Alpline.

What are known as the Mexican extradition cases for allowing breach of neutrality laws and the case of Jan Pouren were particularly gone into.

In the Mexican cases the allegation was made that the Mexican government had succeeded in persuading the American authorities to hold prisoners on criminal charges which were trumped up for the purpose of free speech, free press and public assembly, and were declared to be denied in Mexico by President Diaz, who, it was said, had gone out of his way to punish all advocates of liberty.

He was also declared to be working men, women and children in Mexico, fourteen to sixteen hours a day for wages ranging from ten cents to forty cents a day.

The Pouren Case.
As to Jan Pouren, it was declared that the offenses charged against him and for which the Russian government is seeking to have him extradited, are of his political career entirely and that there is no positive evidence against him warranting his extradition. At the conclusion of the conference, President Gompers made no statement of the results accomplished by the interview except this:

"The president expressed himself in entire sympathy with the purpose of the matter as presented to him, and will have a careful investigation made, but expressed dissent from the criticism of General Porfirio Diaz."

GUILD

IMPETUS IS GIVEN CAUSE OF FOREST PRESERVES.

President Is Former Governor of Massachusetts, and Succeeds James Wilson.

Washington, Jan. 16.—Great impetus was today given to the cause of forestry preservation when the American Forestry Association unanimously elected as officers a number of most prominent men in the state, educational, political and other walks of life. For president of the association, former Gov. Curtis Guild of Massachusetts was chosen in succession to James Wilson, secretary of agriculture, who expressed a wish to retire.

Gov. Guild was chosen "because he is committed heart and soul to the cause of forestry and conservation," it was stated. The vice-presidents include Andrew Carnegie, James J. Hill, W. W. Finley, president of the Southern railroad, David R. Francis of Missouri, Dr. Weir Mitchell of Philadelphia, Andrew White of New York, Dr. Albert Shaw, editor of Review of Reviews, Representative Ransdell of Louisville, Rev. Dr. Edward Everett Hale of Massachusetts, and Rutherford P. Hayes of North Carolina.

The association concluded its work today following the adoption of a series of resolutions, the most important of which provides for a non-interference policy in political matters; recommending the passage of a bill now pending in congress for instruction in forestry in state agricultural schools; repeal of the timber and stone act, substituting in its stead a law providing that timber and stone shall be sold at its actual value and the proceeds be devoted to purchasing forest lands to safeguard navigable streams; the authorization by congress of a bond issue for internal waterways improvements; urging state legislatures to purchase non-agricultural lands to be converted into forest reserves and the enactment of state laws removing the tax on standing timber and substituting an income tax when the timber is cut.

ANCESTRAL APITUDES.

Heredity, we are assured by a modern school of biologists, is nothing but a combination of racial habit and racial memory. Our ancestors learn how to do something, and we "remember" it; that is all.

This theory fits remarkably well into a study recently made in France of a wonderful family of gymnasts or acrobats, all of whom, men and women, for three centuries, have followed this occupation. It would appear from the investigation that each generation of this family has learned its feats more easily than the one before, and that this has depended not only on greater physical or bodily aptitude, but on mental inclination.

The family is very proud of its eminence in the acrobatic world. No member would seek other employment, regarding it as shameful to do so, even if not physically fitted for the occupation. This feeling of pride, together with the desire to excel in feats of skill and the love of applause, evidently plays an important part in the making of a good acrobat, and it seems to have been transmitted by heredity as well as the necessary physique.

Here, the investigator thinks, we have both physical and mental "memory" of ancestral aptitudes and skill. The descendant bears within him this memory of what was taught to his ancestors; it lies dormant within him and needs only an appropriate awakening. This awakening, in the case of the acrobatic family, has been brought about by merely seeing other persons perform feats of physical skill; and the successful imitation of these requires days or hours, where with an ordinary person it would take months or years.

which is both a food and a medicine. It is a scientific emulsion of Norwegian Cod Liver Oil, pleasant to take and children love it. Its body-building qualities are wonderful. Sold with the Rexall guarantee. In large bottles, 75c.

McPHELSON'S DRUG STORE.

This evidently applies, if true, to the whole range of human activity and not to acrobatics alone. Should we go back to the caste system, whereby father and son for centuries plied the same trade? Was the Hindoo bricklayer, whose ancestors were all bricklayers, a better workman than the American, whose father was a carpenter and whose grandfather worked on a farm?—New York Herald.

Tobacco is unloaded in large, flat baskets, each grade to itself, weighed and receipt given owner, showing number of draft and pounds thereof. A corresponding ticket is placed on each pile. The highest bid is written on ticket and, should owner accept same, by presenting at office receipt previously given, the cash is handed over.

Should the bid offered not be satisfactory, the tobacco can be offered the next day or at any other time thereafter.

It costs absolutely nothing to offer your tobacco unless bid is accepted, in which case we charge 15 cents per hundred pounds and 2 cents on the dollar.

You will get more money for your tobacco when offered to the highest bidder in open competition with twenty-five buyers trying to buy than when you expect or require one buyer to buy millions of pounds without competition at a round price.

A Woman Hater.

[Copyright, 1908, by American Press Association.]

A crusty old bachelor told me this. He ought to be ashamed of himself: "Dear," said young Mrs. Herkimer, "what did you mean by saying to Tom Fowler that you are a woman hater? He'll tell his wife, and it will get all over town."

"Well, sweetheart, it doesn't matter to you, so long as I don't hate you." "Yes, it does. Every woman wishes her husband to be liked by other women. Of course you saying such a thing will make you dreadfully unpopular."

"It can't be helped now. The deed is done. Fowler, I know, is a dreadful gossip. I suppose I'll soon get cut right and left."

"Indeed you will. And what will people think of me? They will naturally infer that you have derived your bad opinion of our sex from me."

"I shall continue to show them by my treatment of you that you are the only one of the lot I love."

The next evening Mr. and Mrs. Bob Herkimer went to Mrs. Ellis' reception. When they returned and were preparing for rest Mrs. Herkimer, doing her hair, said:

"Bob, I was standing among a group tonight when you passed with Gertrude Lee. A woman near me, not knowing I was your wife, said:

"There goes that horrid Herkimer. He avows himself a woman hater. He should be read out of society."

"The lady's age?" asked Herkimer imperturbably.

"About fifty."

"Married or single?"

"Single."

"Name, please."

"Miss Susan Jones."

"Miss Jones doesn't count with me. She is aggressive, ambitious and, above all, very smart."

"That's the worst of it. She will say lots of bright things against you."

"Well, dear, I'll have to endure it. Good night. I'm tired and sleepy."

The Herkimeres were "out" a good deal, and Mrs. Herkimer was much troubled about an evident change in her husband's position. Several women whom he had known gave him the cut direct, while others spoke to him when they met him very coolly.

"You see," said his wife, "the folly of your indiscretion."

"I have not yet been cut by any woman whose opinion I value. Most of them are old maids, and none of them is of an especially feminine type. Mrs. Montague is the mother of a family, but she is more interested in the extension of the vote to women than the interests of her children. Mrs. Tweed is engaged in fighting her brothers and sisters over her late father's will. Mrs. Arbuckle is using Mrs. Tweed to help her into society. I'm waiting for a woman to cut me who is a real good, lovely woman."

"You'll find plenty of them in time."

"Very well, sweetheart, since you are so distressed about it I'll see what I can do to get myself liked again."

"Will you attempt to placate the women you have mentioned?"

"By no means. I shall attempt to overbalance their opinion by making friends with the most attractive."

Mrs. Herkimer maintained a profound silence for several minutes. Then she said:

"Perhaps you had better let the matter drop. They will find a new subject to talk about soon."

"You are the one to decide that matter, sweetheart. It is you who are sensitive over my disgrace, not I. Since you wish it I will take no action."

A few months later Mrs. Herkimer said in an impressive, measured tone to her husband at the breakfast table, "Bob, I have concluded to 'regret' all invitations for the balance of the year."

"Why so, sweetheart?" looking up, surprised, from his paper.

"For some time past I have noticed that certain women of our set are endeavoring to attract your attention."

"You don't mean it?"

"Yes, I do, and I don't like it."

"Do you blame me?"

"Not at all. They are making a dead set for you."

"You must be mistaken. That gossiping Fowler gave me a social black eye by spreading my talk about being a woman hater."

"U-m."

"Well?"

"It didn't work just the way I thought it would. It's true certain women were very bitter against you, but they were mostly of our higher grade of women, intellectually considered. I've been surprised to find that the women who covet attention have been swarming about you like so many disgusting bees."

"Oho!"

"The way Lucy Turnee palavered over you at the Ashtons' last night was simply ludicrous. Her simpering, the way she rolled her eyes and, heaven knows, what flattery she gave you with that disagreeable tongue of hers were enough to make one ill. She's the sixth woman I've noticed making herself ridiculous about you, and I confess, it annoys me."

"You surprise me. I hadn't noticed anything. How do you account for it? What's their game?"

"It all came of that ridiculous speech of yours about being a woman hater. In the first place, any woman likes to get where no other woman can get. These crazy things wish to be the only exception among a class you hate. First, to satisfy their own conceit, and second, they think it gives them eclat."

He burst into a laugh and took her to his arms. ESTELLE MARSH.

EPOCH MAKING EVENTS IN CUBA

Farewell Address of Commander Barry Issued.

Magoon Honor Guest at Biggest Banquet Ever Held in Havana—Made Appropriate Speech.

GIVEN OVATION BY PARTIES.

Havana, Jan. 16.—Two significant events today marked the approaching end of the American administration of affairs in Cuba. Major General Barry, commanding the army of Cuban pacification at Camp Columbia, issued a farewell address of congratulation to the troops still in the island, and those who have already left for home. Provisional Governor Magoon was the guest of honor and principal speaker at a gala banquet in the National theater, tendered by the commercial and industrial bodies of Havana. This function was attended by more than five hundred distinguished Cubans and Spaniards, residents of Havana, members of the diplomatic corps and dignitaries of the state and church. The banquet, which was the largest ever held here, also was in honor of President-elect General Jose Miguel Gomez, and Vice President-elect Alfredo Zayas and the defeated presidential and vice presidential candidates on the Conservative ticket, General Mario Montecali and Rafael Montoro.

The dinner, at which there was a notable display of the good feeling now existing through the island, was preceded by a lengthy exhibition of fireworks in Central park. Governor Magoon, when he arose to speak, informed his hearers that the world was watching Cuba, not without apprehension, but with the best and kindest of wishes that the efforts of the Cuban people would be crowned with success. He received an ovation.

General Barry's address to the troops was read at Camp Columbia just before "Retreat." In it he spoke of the conditions when the troops arrived, of the progress of the work of pacification and of the splendid conduct of the American troops throughout the trying ordeal.

At the banquet Governor Magoon who was attacked by the conservative newspapers because of his large expenditures of public funds, said that when the period of intervention began there was about $9,000,000 in the Cuban treasury. The Americans undertook vast improvements, which were badly needed and essential to the progress and development of the islands. These improvements, he declared, were of enduring benefit and while they were practically completed there still remained about $2,000,000 in the treasury and revenues were showing a gratifying increase.
